LEGAL NOTICES

Alexandria Gazette.

THE DAY EVENING, MARCH 5, 1903.

Dressing by Act of Parliament. The old sumptuary laws were those regulations by which the dress and food of the king's subjects were nicely controlled. It was a sort of official Mrs. Grundy: Fashion regulations for men in particular were laid down on very precise lines, and the changes in their attire occurred much more frequently than in women's. Very different is the case now. In those days, too, men's dress was bright and even

Prior to 1104 long hair was the regulation. In that year, however, Henry I., of blessed memory to barbers, had all his subjects' locks ruthlessly shorn. The next important edict of this kind was under Edward III., who insisted that no one should have more than two courses for dinner, except on the eighten holidays in the year, when the king's lieges might eat and drink at

Of interest to ladies will be the hard fate that befell the big sleeves worn by men under Richard II. We are told that some hung down to the knees. When pottage is brought to the table "the sleeves go into them and get the first taste." In short, the nuisance was so intolerable that a statute was passed prohibiting any man below a banneret from wearing them.

One of the rarest and most precious stones is the carbuncle, which is sometimes confounded with the ruby, from which it differs by the intensity of its fires, produced by an internal luster of gold, while under the purple of the ruby there only appear dottings of azure or lacquer. Ethiopia produced the most precious ancient carbuncles. The Chaldeans regarded this stone as a powerful talisman. Legend makes the eyes of dragons out of carbuncles. Gar-cias ab Horto, physician of one of the viceroys of India, speaks of carbuncies which he saw in the palace of that prince which were so extraordinary in their brilliancy that they seemed "like redhot coals in the midst of darkness." Louis Vertoman reports that the king of Pegu wore an enormous one, which at night appeared to be lighted up with sunbeams. The virtues of the carbuncle are resistance to fire, preservation of the eyes, promotion of pleasant dreams, creation of happy illusions and an antidote against impure air.

Willful Misunderstanding.

Pitt was induced by Sir John Sin-clair to constitute a board of agricul-ture toward the end of the eighteenth century and make him the president. Having enjoyed his office for a few years, Sinclair began to desire promotion in the social scale. "Dear Mr. Pitt," he wrote to the prime minister, don't you think the president of the board of agriculture should be a peer?"
"Dear Sir John Sinclair," replied "I entirely agree with you. I have therefore appointed Lord Somer-ville to succeed you as president of the board of agriculture." Sir John Sinclair went about wringing his hands and exclaiming: "Dear me, dear me! It was such a willful misunderstanding!" - Fortnightly Re-

Lucidly Explained.

When I was along here a month ago and asked you how far it was to Colfax, you said it was twelve miles. It's only nine. Why didn't you say nine?"

"It was the old woman's fault," re-plied the squatter. "I wasn't suah whether it was nine or twelve, and so I went in and axed her. She reckoned it was twelve, and I had to reckon the same or have a row. When I reckoned as she reckoned, she reckoned that you'd reckon it was twelve miles nigh enough, and I reckon you reckoned that

The Beautiful Turquoise.

The turquoise is considered as a talisman in Persia, its native soil. It pre serves its possessor from accidents and insures constancy in affections. The value of the turquoise depends on its shade and its size, especially its thickness. Those classed as belonging to the old rock are valued very highly. Emblem of youth, of sentiment and tender recollections, the turquoise may be called the forget-me-not of stones.

"This fishin' fever seems to be con-tagious," said the stranger, noting the long row of anglers perched upon the creek bank.

'Yes, it's contagious, all right," said the man who had been fishing four hours without a nibble, "but not ketchin'."-Baltimore American.
